Dear Charlie,

I hope this letter finds you full of joy and excitement as Christmas approaches. As Santa Claus, I wanted to take a moment to acknowledge your kind heart and the positive behavior you have displayed throughout the year.

I recall how you have always been ready and willing to help with your chores around the house. Your parents, Scott and Laura, have shared with me how responsible and reliable you are. It warms my heart to see how you care for your younger siblings and are always there to lend a helping hand. Your selflessness is truly remarkable!

Now, let's talk about the important values we should all work on. Remember, Charlie, sharing is caring! I encourage you to continue working on sharing your toys with your siblings and friends. It's essential to understand that spreading joy and happiness by sharing can make a significant difference in someone's day. Also, being a good friend on the playground is equally important. Remember to treat others with kindness, respect, and include everyone in your games. Your positive attitude can create a welcoming and inclusive environment for all.

As for your Christmas wishes, I have taken note of your desire for a remote control drone and a science experiment kit. You have demonstrated great curiosity and interest in learning through science, and I'm thrilled to see your enthusiasm. I'll do my best to make your wishes come true on Christmas morning.

Charlie, continue being the wonderful kid that you are. Remember to continue sharing your toys and being a great friend on the playground. Your selflessness and positive attitude make you a shining example to others.

Merry Christmas, dear Charlie!

Santa
